CHAPTER - 1

INTRODUCTION

1.1 Introduction

Electrical and electronics goods manufacturing and consumption in India is growing at a significant pace and the industry is recognized as one of the growth engines of the economy and is considered a champion sector by DPIIT, Ministry of Commerce and Industry, Government of India. The rapid technological growth in the field of electronics has made homes appliances and office equipment both affordable and easily available. Also, the increasing incomes, increasing women in the workforce is leading to increased purchase and use of electronic gadgets and household appliances.

On the other hand, the increase usage of e-goods is also leading to increased electrical and electronic appliances waste. To manage these waste scientifically Government of India promulgated E-waste (Management) Rules, 2016 wherein different types of electrical and electronic equipment are classified & listed in Schedule-I. In accordance with the classification of e-waste done as per the Waste Electrical and Electronic Equipment Directive (WEEE Directive) of the European Union. An illustrative classification of e-waste is shown in fig-1. To effectively implement these rules and manage e-waste by all stakeholders Central Pollution Control Board developed e-waste guidelines for different stakeholders including consumers, bulk consumers, refurbishers, dismantlers etc. for refurbish, recycle & reuse of e-wastes.

In line with the e-waste rules and guidelines all state pollution control boards are required to undertake E-waste inventorization and this study is carried out for inventorying E-waste in Tamilnadu. Accordingly in this chapter the current state of e-waste generation in tamilnadu is profiled to comprehend the issues concerning inventorization.

1.1.1 Global & Indian Scenario of E-waste Generation:

India stands 5th in the world among top e-waste producing countries in the world after USA, China, Japan and Germany. The total e-waste generated worldwide is about 40-50 Million Tons annually of which India contributes about 4-5%. India generates 1.8 Million Tons E-waste annually and is increasing [ASSOCHAM Report-2016]. In India, Maharashtra generates highest amount of largest e-waste (19.8%) followed by Tamil Nadu (13%), Uttar Pradesh (10.1%), West Bengal (9.8%), Delhi (9.5%), Karnataka (8.9%), Gujarat (8.8%) and Madhya Pradesh (7.6)^I.

 (*Source: ASSOCHAM-KPMG Report)

As per the Global E-Waste monitoring report 2020, India stands 3rd in the world among top e-waste producing countries in the world after China and USA. The total e-waste generated worldwide is about 53.6 Million Tons annually an average of 7.3 kg per capita in the year 2019 of which India contributes 6% at an average of 2.4 kg per capita. India generates 3.230 Million tons E-waste annually^{II}. In 2019, the world generated a striking 53.6 Mt of e-waste, an average of 7.3 kg per capita. The global generation of e-waste grew by 9.2 Mt since 2014 and is projected to grow to 74.7 Mt by 2030 – almost doubling in only 16 years. The growing amount of e-waste is mainly fueled by higher consumption rates of EEE, short life cycles, and few repair options. Asia generated the highest quantity of e-waste in 2019 at 24.9 Mt, followed by the Americas (13.1 Mt) and Europe (12 Mt), while Africa and Oceania generated 2.9 Mt and 0.7 Mt, respectively. Europe ranked first worldwide in terms of e-waste generation per capita, with 16.2 kg per capita. Oceania was second (16.1 kg per capita), followed by the Americas (13.3 kg per capita), while Asia and Africa generated just 5.6 and 2.5 kg per capita, respectively

1.1.2 Scenario of E-waste Generation in Tamil Nadu:

In Tamil Nadu, the second largest e-waste generator in India the five districts of Chennai, Coimbatore, Madurai, Trichirapalli, Vellore districts were considered as very critical and its contributions is 52%.

For instance based on the state GDP contribution (1,630,208 crore) to national GDP (19,220,355 crore) – the share of TN to India is approximately 8.5% in 2018-19. The national estimate for 2020 as per MeITY for e-waste is 3.5 million MT/annum which linearly would translate to 297,500 million MT/annum. This may be treated as a lower estimate of e-waste that may be generated. As one of the most developed states of India, Tamil Nadu has higher per-capita income.

ASSOCHAM estimates that TN contributes about 13% of the total e-waste in India which works to nearly 455,000 MT/annum of e-waste. Based on our report we have estimated the e-waste to be about 400,482 MT/annum for TN which is quite close to being in agreement with the ASSOCHAM report and well above the nominal lower limit calculated by linear projection.

In this report e-waste assessment is based on the revenue districts. However, most reports do not make the distinction based on revenue district, and rather use Chennai to refer to the metropolitan region. The metropolitan region of Chennai, according to the Greater Chennai Corporation includes most taluks of the Kancheepuram and Tiruvallur districts.

ASSOCHAM has projected the e-waste in 2016 as 67,000 MT/year for Chennai in general and not particular to the revenue district. Our estimate for the Chennai metro region (combined figures of the revenue district of Chennai, Kancheepuram, and Tiruvallur) is about 81,229 MT in the year 2020 and projected to grow to 133,887 MT in the year 2030. For the period of 2016-21 the ASSOCHAM report predicts a CAGR of 3.15%. Our report estimates the CAGR from 2020-30 is 5 %.

Central Pollution Control Board has develop guidelines for implementing E-waste management Rules 2016. These guidelines are applicable to every producer, consumer or bulk consumer, collection centre, dismantler and recycler of e-waste involved in the manufacture, sale and purchase & processing of electrical and electronic equipment or components specified in schedule – I of these Rules. The rule enforces all State Pollution control Boards and Pollution control Committees to carry out Inventorization of e-waste under its jurisdiction which would enable to effectively strike a balance between generation and disposal/recycle. This would complement the other duties of SPCBs/PCCs like Authorisation grants/renewal to the stakeholders, compliance monitoring and action against violation of the Rules.

E-waste, although a challenge, also provides an opportunity for the recycling industry. E-waste recycling is an evolving industry that is in its early stages of evolution in India, with recyclers primarily concentrated in major cities and nearby districts. Electronic goods are composed of different materials, some of them of high value such as gold, platinum, copper, silver, germanium, etc. In addition, electrical and electronic goods also contain significant amounts of plastics, iron, aluminium, etc. Globally, only 20 per cent of e-waste is recycled each year, which means that 40 million tonnes of e-waste is either placed in landfill, burned or illegally traded and treated in a sub-standard way. As things stand today, the collection and processing of e-waste is still majorly informal. Depending on geography, the extent of e-waste collection and processing tends to vary, but even the best estimates do not exceed 10% collection by formal means.

Considering the significant employment it provides for personnel involved in informal recycle chain co-opting them and bringing them into formal channels of collection and processing poses significant challenges. Hence, the improvement in increasing the formal collection and recycling situation is unlikely to change any time soon. Therefore, it becomes imperative to understand the growth in the usage of electrical and electronic devices to assist in assessing e-waste generation and to make informed decisions at various stakeholder levels. Considering these facts, the study is conducted in two phases with the following scope of work.

1.1.3 E-Waste Legislation in India & Its salient features:

E-waste was covered under the Hazardous Waste Management (HWM) Rules Prior to the enactment of the E-Waste (Management and Handling) Rules, 2011. Under the Environmental Protection Act 1986, the E-waste (Management and Handling) Rules, 2011 were enacted and became effective from 1st May, 2012.

E-Waste Rules-2011:

- ❖ These Rules were brought into force to enable recovery and/or reuse of useful material from e-waste
- ❖ For the first time, the concept of Extended Producer Responsibility (EPR) was introduced which made manufacturers liable for safe disposal of electronic goods.

E-Waste Rules-2016:

- ❖ Enacted in supersession of the 2011 Rules and came into effect from 1st October, 2016.
- ❖ A manufacturer, dealer, refurbisher and Producer Responsibility Organization (PRO) were also brought under the ambit of these Rules.
- ❖ An option was given for setting up of a PRO as an additional channel for implementation of EPR by Producers. Further, collection mechanism based approach was adopted for collection of e-waste by Producers under EPR.
- ❖ The applicability of the Rules was expanded to cover components, consumables, parts and spares of EEE in addition to the equipments covered under the Rules.

Amendment in 2018 to E-Waste Rules-2016:

- ❖ Amended by the Centre; vide notification G. S. R. 261 (E), dated 22nd March, 2018
- ❖ These amendments have been made with the objective of channelizing the e-waste generated in the country towards authorized dismantlers and recyclers in order to further formalize the e-waste recycling sector with effect from 1st October, 2017.
- ❖ 10% of the quantity of waste generated shall be collected during 2017-2018. Further, there shall be a 10% increase every year until the year 2023. After 2023, the E-Waste collection target has been fixed at 70% of the quantity of waste generation.
- ❖ PROs shall apply to CPCB for registration. CPCB can constantly supervise and it may conduct random sampling of electrical and electronic equipment and the cost of sampling and testing of the reduction of hazardous substances provisions shall be borne by the Government. However, if the product does not comply with it, then the cost of the reduction of hazardous substances test will be borne by the producer.
- ❖ The producers have to take responsibility for their products. This rules emphasize on a synchronized endeavour by the industries, pollution control boards and local authorities
- ❖ The relaxation in the EPR Plan by reduction in the e-waste collection targets and overture of realistic collection targets will result in increased observance of the E-Waste Rules by organizations.
- ❖ The requirement of PROs to register with CPCB would aid in the creation of an organized and legitimate industry and would pave way for effective and improved e-waste management in India.

1.1.4 Guidelines on Implementation of E-Waste (Management) Rules, 2016 & its salient features:

[1] Implementing Extended Producer Responsibility (EPR):

- EPR authorisation is mandatory and has to be obtained by all the producers including importers, e-retailers/on-line sellers/e-bay etc.
- EPR either through take-back system or by setting up collection centres or both for channelisation of e-waste to authorised dismantlers/recyclers.

EPR Plan would consist of

- ✓ Estimation of E-Waste Generation
- ✓ Estimation of Target for Collection
- ✓ Collection and Storage plan
- ✓ Channelization Plan in Form-1 through collection centres, Dismantlers/Recyclers and TSDFs

[2] Collection and Storage of E-Waste:

[3] Collection Centre

- a. should have weighing equipment for weighing each delivery and maintain a record
- b. The storage capacity should commensurate with volume of operations (weight and numbers) and category of E-waste and should store category wise.
- c. Covered shed/spaces have to be used and should necessarily have adequate fire-fighting arrangement

[4] Transportation of E-Waste:

- a. Transport of E-Waste should be carried out as per the E-Waste (M) Rules, 2016
- b. Required to carry a document (3 sets) provided by the sender(producer, manufacturer, recyclers, dismantler, bulk consumer, refurbisher and collection centre)

[5] Environmentally sound Dismantling of E-Waste:

a. Dismantler

- i. A dismantler shall be connected to either Producers or PRO or e-waste exchange or takeback system or authorised recycler.
- ii. A Dismantler has to obtain CTE, CTO & authorisation from SPCBs/PCCs

b. Dismantling process

- i. De-dusting
- ii. Manual dismantling

c. Space Requirements for Dismantlers

- i. Needs space for storage of electrical and electronic equipment up to 180 days
- ii. 300 square meter area for a dismantling capacity of 1T/day

[6] Environmentally Sound Recycling of E-Waste:

a. Recycler

- i. Should be part of channelisation system & should have the proper infrastructure.
- ii. A recycler has to obtain CTE, CTO & authorisation from SPCBs/PCCs

b. Recycling Process and its types and necessary guidelines in processing e-waste

c. Space Requirements for Recyclers

- i. 1 Ton per day shall require a minimum of 500 square meters area
- ii. Authorisation may be preferred if operational capacity is minimum 5 MT/day with an area of about 2500 square meter.

1.2 Scope

The scope of the study involves the following:

- To identify and quantify the E-waste generation in 32 districts of Tamil Nadu from every manufacturer, producer, consumer, bulk consumer, collection centers, dealers, e-retailer, refurbisher, dismantler and recycler involved in manufacture, sale, transfer, purchase, collection, storage and processing of E-waste including their components, consumables, parts and spares which make the product operational as listed in Schedule I of E-waste Management Rules, 2016.
- To examine the existing E-waste recycling system (Formal and Informal sectors).
- To estimate the existing and future quantity of e-wastes.
- Preparation of directory of the stakeholders

1.3 Methodology

The study is conducted in two phases. The following methodology was adopted for the study:

1.3.1 Methodology for Phase-I Study:

In this phase, E-goods consumption is estimated using census data e-goods held by households, population growth rate, Gross state and district domestic product, state per capita income, household size, internet penetration and making appropriate assumptions such as proliferation of mobile phone technology for estimating current ownership patterns.

Similarly, e-waste generation was estimated using life of equipment information identified by literature survey, CPCB reports and data submitted by TNPCB to CPCB in Form V. Considering that formal sector collects only 10% a base assumption is made that data submitted by TNPCB constitutes maximum 10% of e-waste and the base figure correction is applied. For this estimation additional local correction factors such as large metropolitan vs. backward districts on growth, mobile ownership, mobile SIM growth, internet penetration, GDDP growth vis-à-vis GSDP, bulk to retail consumer ratio and other factors were applied to estimate the e-waste generation.

E-waste assessment is based on the revenue districts. However, most reports do not make the distinction based on revenue district, and rather use Chennai to refer to the metropolitan region.

Through literature and survey of recyclers the subcomponents of disposed e-goods along with their weight is collected to establish type of materials generated like plastics, glass, PCBs Ferrous and non-ferrous metals.

1.3.2 Methodology for Phase-II Study:

- The second approach was based on collecting data from key stakeholders to assess e-goods consumption and disposal patterns through questionnaire survey, data submitted to Pollution Control Board, interviews and physical visits. For this purpose based on schedule-I units stakeholder details were collected from various sources like
 - Data submitted to TNPCB through consent applications and in other forms,
 - Industrial, commercial, academic and other directories and trade/dealer associations.

This data is compiled as “Directories of Stakeholders”.

- Questionnaires were designed for each stakeholder and responses sought through email with follow-up done by telephone.
- Visits were made to key stakeholders to address the processes they adopt in managing e-waste which includes collection, refurbishing, dismantling, recycling and disposal. The survey results were correlated with the estimates arrived at using the phase-I results and accordingly district wise e-waste trend is projected.
- The data collected is compiled and compared with the e-waste inventorisation done using existing data in phase-1 to arrive at level of formal and informal stakeholders involved in e-waste management.
- Recommendations were involved based on the issues that arose during inventorisation and based on the technical practices, technologies and systems gap between formal and informal collectors, dismantlers, re-furbishers, recyclers and re-processors.

1.4 Existing E-waste generation mechanism and recycling system

According to the definition of the e-waste if any of the electronic or electrical equipment lasted till its lifespan; it is e-waste. In some situations, the equipment may become unserviceable even before it attains the intended lifespan; otherwise, it still works beyond the intended lifespan. Whenever, an equipment is designed, the manufacturer previews obsolescence in three ways viz.,

1. The Planned Obsolescence,
2. Functional or Economic Obsolescence and
3. Physical Obsolescence.

The Planned Obsolescence is designed by the manufacturer which decides the minimum service assurance of the equipment otherwise called the 'Lifespan'. There is a vast variation in equipment 'usage pattern' depending upon the consumer behaviour and load on the equipment. Keeping the Indian context in mind CPCB has specifically provided for the average life span to be used which is considered for inventorization as well as recycling and disposal.

Recycling of E -Waste is done through formal, semiformal and informal routes. In formal recycling route, the waste is collected by authorised recycler for recycling through collection centre as well as from refurbishers. Mostly the wastes from refurbishers which cannot to be used further are processed.

The process of dismantling is an important stage in e-waste recycling. It involves breaking of end-of-use equipment into its components and segregating them for the convenience of recycling. The segregated/sorted items are mainly LCD monitors, printed circuit boards, CPU, power cables, keyboards, net cable, screws, plastics, batteries, printers cartridges, ferrous and nonferrous metals. These components are further processed by dry process like shredding or by wet process like chemical leaching for precious metal recovery. Some components like lithium battery are exported for further recycling since the facility is not available in Indian recycling unit.

In semiformal route, the authorised recycler collects the waste for recycling from the collection centres under EPR scheme and also from the big kabadi/scrap dealers and other big auctioners.

Informal sector recycling is done illegally with minimal effort recycling practice and this sort of recycling also affects the running of formal recyclers.

1.5 Structure of the Report

The entire report is organised into 9 chapters.

- Chapter 1: gives background on E-waste, scope of the present study and brief description of the methodology adopted for the study.
- Chapter 2: describes how e-waste is estimated and its future projection based on e-goods consumption, population growth trend, economic growth, average life span of EEE, average weight of EEE, Industrial growth etc.
- Chapter 3: describes the stakeholder profile based on the prepared directory and it also provides various inferences and observations on stakeholder profile.
- Chapter 4: gives logic behind the questionnaire design for various stakeholders. Considering the level of information handled /available by various stakeholders a set of 7 questionnaires were designed and circulated to the stakeholders for getting response and validate the E-waste projection form the response. Questionnaire was sent by e-mail, post and follow up with the stakeholders was done through phone for getting response.
- Chapter 5: Conclusions arrived from both phase-I &II studies and analysis of data is presented with recommendations.

CHAPTER - 2

ESTIMATION OF E-GOODS CONSUMPTION & WASTE GENERATION

2.1 Introduction to Estimation of E-goods Consumption:

In the present study a two tier inventorisation is carried out. In the first stage inventorisation is based on E-goods sold and disposed at the end of the useful life. In the second stage inventorisation is done to assess the materials generated from E-waste like Plastics, Glass.etc; that can be recycled.

2.2 First Stage Inventorisation:

For the first stage of inventorisation several approaches have been explored in literature. For the first stage of inventorisation the extant guidelines of the Central Pollution Control Board (CPCB) [2] is carried out considering the e-goods sold in a certain will be discarded at end of designed life of that particular e-goods as shown in the box below.

CPCB GUIDELINE MODEL FOR ESTIMATING E-WASTE

E-waste generation (weight or number) in $FY_{(x-y)} = \text{Sales in } FY_{(x-z)-(y-z)}$

where, $x-y$ =financial year in which generation is estimated, and
 z =average life span of EEE

For example, to estimate the e-waste of ITEW15 (cellular phones) in the financial year 2016-17,

E-waste generation in $FY_{2016-17} = \text{Sales in } FY_{(2016-5)-(2017-5)}$

where, $x-y= 2016-17 =$ financial year in which generation is estimated, and $z =$ average life span of EEE = 5 years

E-waste generation (weight or number) in $FY_{(2016-2017)} = \text{Sales in } FY_{(2011-2012)}$

The extant method as advocated by the CPCB assumes the availability of sales data in a geospatial format on a financial year basis. Such data is not publicly available currently, either at a national level or at the state level.

However, two other significant sources of data were relied upon to perform the estimation of e-waste in a district-wise manner in Tamil Nadu. One, the district census handbook of 2011 [3], and second, the Form-5 submissions made by the Tamil Nadu Pollution Control Board (TNPCB) [4, 5, 6] to the CPCB under the E-waste (Management) Rules, 2016. The district census handbook provides information regarding ownership of computers, televisions, and cell phones, whereas the Form-5 submissions made by the TNPCB provide information regarding the e-waste collected primarily through formal channels.

As such, information in the census and Form-5, is used to arrive at an estimate of the current levels of usage. In the absence of sales data, using the financial year as a basis becomes unnecessary. Therefore, as we progress into the details of the calculation methodology, this report shall refer to a year in the sense of an end of financial basis year (i.e. a column of information containing details of 2016 refers to the financial year 2015-16).

2.2.1 Data Sources and assumption made in estimation of E-Waste

The use, rate of increase in use of e-goods depends on income levels, income growth rates, population and its growth rate, goods and services availability, size of households etc. To assess e-goods consumption and future trends data on Gross District Domestic Product (GDDP), Gross State Domestic Product (GSDP), share of manufacturing and services and its % to GDDP, internet penetration and cellular phones growth, household size, average number of lights used in household etc was considered. The key primary data sources include the District Census of 2011[12], and the TNPCB regulatory filing vide Form 5 – Annexure 3 to the CPCB[4, 5, 6]. A list of secondary data sources and deductions from which data is taken are given in the Annexure - 1.1.

For extrapolating trends in e-goods consumption and e-waste generation reasonable assumptions were made as listed in Table 2.1 and Table 2.2.

Table 2.1: Assumptions Employed for E-waste Inventorisation of Schedule – 1 Items

S. No	Assumption	Citation	Details
1	Mainframes, Minicomputers, Electrical and electronic typewriters, Facsimile, Telex, Pay telephones are obsolete by 2020. Not considered for projection.	[7]	Chapter 11, Page 163-164, point 14
2	Census data being more elaborate, is considered for the projection calculations. Assumed 30% additional contribution from bulk/industrial users which is not captured by census	[7]	Chapter 11, Page 161, point 1
3	Census data does not report separately for Desktop, Laptop, Notebook and Notepad. Census combines both ITEW2 and ITEW3 as a single data point. However, the census does not capture ITEW4 and ITEW5. Hence ITEW2 to ITEW 5 are considered as a single item.	-
4	Based on e-waste reporting pattern ITEW 4 and 5 together maybe assumed to be 5% of total ITEW 2 and ITEW3.	[4, 5, 6]	Annexure III of respective year filing
5	Preliminary data suggests that share of laptops and desktops in the market can be averaged at ~ 45%. (Desktops at 62% in 2010 and 32% in 2019). Accordingly, the average weight of ITEW2-5 will be linearly weighted as - 50% desktops*13.2kg + 45% Laptops*3.1kg + 5% Notebook/Notepad * 0.3kg.	[8]	Figure on Screen Sales
6	More than 90% of e-Waste going to informal/unorganized sector. Implying that Formal Sector Collection level is < 10%. Nominal assumption of 5% as formal collection level and 95% being informal.	[9]	Page 44, Section 2.3

S. No	Assumption	Citation	Details
7	In general, it is noted that there is a steady decline in the levels of fixed-line telephone usage. However, there is an increase in the fixed-line broadband internet usage. Schedule 1, of MoEF notification does not count internet/broadband devices under any category. We considered broadband connection devices as part of the landline telephone ecosystem and considered this as a growing segment and include it in the projection.	[10]	Page37, Exhibit 8
8	Cordless Telephones are counted under ITEW 12.	[7]	Chapter 11, Page 163-164, point 14
9	Census data being more elaborate, is considered for the projection calculations. Cellular phones are not distinguished as smart phones vs feature phones in census data. However, given that the average age is 5 years for smart phones and 7 years for feature phones and the quantity of waste is nearly the same for both categories of phones, we treat these two as one composite category with average age of 6 years.
10	Saturation levels for mobile phone subscribers in India was reached in 2018. The 2011 census data was collected primarily in 2010. The mobile subscription base grew from 42.3 million in 2010 to 95.7 million in 2018 an annual growth rate of 15.7%. Beyond 2018, i.e. saturation levels, it is understood that there was no growth in the mobile phone subscribers, but there was a growth in smart phones, which essentially replaced the feature phones.	[11]	Page 39, Tamil Nadu Table
11	Answering systems did not have a significant presence historically to begin with. Not considered for projection.	[7]	Chapter 11, Page 163-164, point 14
12	Census data being more elaborate, is considered for the projection calculations. Based on the definition of a dwelling room, and assuming every room in a household contains a bulb. Additionally, it is assumed that every house has access to either a toilet or kitchen. Therefore, the number of bulbs in a household = number of rooms + 1	[12]	Page 44, Col.17, points 4.73-4.77
13	30% additional contribution from bulk/industrial users, not captured by census is assumed in addition to assumption in S. No. 24.

GA1	Assumed average per-capita income growth rate from 2005-06 to 2011-12 is applicable through the period of projection until 2030.	[13]	Table 18, page 44
GA2	District-wise contribution of e-waste is divided based on the Gross Domestic District Product contribution % of a district to the TN Gross Domestic State Product.	[13]	Table 13, page 44
GA3	Population growth rate in Tamil Nadu 2011-21, and 2021-31	[14]	Table 2, page 136
GA4	Internet Penetration Levels in Metro, Urban, Rural areas is weighted based on the degree of urbanization. For a fully urban district (only Chennai), the penetration is considered at Metro levels, for Urban and Rural Areas, linear weighting is used based on degree of urbanization and urban and rural penetration levels.	[15]	Page 3
GA5	Population growth rate from 2001-11 of each district is linearly weighted against the population growth of the state estimated as per Assumption GA2	[14]	Table 2, page 136
GA6	Population growth rate being a net figure that accounts for both births and deaths, implicitly provides a netting down effect for retiring items. In other words - the population growth rate is an inventory on the human population in a district, implicitly providing for an inventory on the device usage by humans.
GA7	Wherever values are deduced/calculated based on primary data from another source, the header column is marked with a "*" symbol.

To calculate the growth in usage of e-goods factors like increase in population, number of households, industrial, mobile, internet penetration, growth in district economy vis-à-vis state, level of urbanization, factors influencing district's economy and other factors were considered. The effect of these factors on e-goods consumption and waste are enumerated by considering the composite growth indices as listed in Table 2.3.

Table 2.3: Composite Growth Indices

Index	Details
Composite Growth Index (household)	Many devices are owned on a household basis. Therefore, it warrants that the population growth is normalized by the size of the household. The remaining details are the same as the index for personal & industrial equipment. $ \begin{aligned} & \text{Composite Growth Index}(H) \\ &= \left(1 + \frac{\text{Per capita Income growth rate}}{100} \times \frac{\text{Internet Penetration}}{100} \right) \\ & \times \left(1 + \frac{\text{Population Growth rate} / \text{Size of household}}{100} \right) \end{aligned} $
Composite Growth Index (cellular phone)	Unlike general devices, the growth pattern of cellular phones in India were significantly different due to various policy interventions. The period from 2008-2018 was a period of intense growth, going from single digit saturation levels of mobile phones to total saturation in a short span. This warrants that an acceleration term is included in the growth index for cell phones. $ \begin{aligned} & \text{Composite Growth Index}(CP) \\ &= \left(1 + \frac{\text{Per capita Income growth rate}}{100} \times \frac{\text{Internet Penetration}}{100} + \frac{\text{Cell Phone Growth rate}}{100} \right) \\ & \times \left(1 + \frac{\text{Population Growth rate}}{100} \right) \end{aligned} $
Composite Growth Index (personal & industrial)	Growth in personal and industrial equipment is modelled as a function of the population growth rate, per-capita income growth rate, degree of urbanization, and internet penetration. Degree of urbanisation is an implicit function of internet penetration.

Composite growth index (organizational) - CGI(O)	Growth in some items are dependent on the economy and the nature of the economy, with manufacturing and services being the primary demand for such devices. This index considers the share of the Gross District Domestic Product (GDDP) to the Gross State Domestic Product (GSDP), and the portion of GDDP coming from manufacturing and services. $\begin{aligned} \text{Composite Growth Index(O)} &= \\ &= \left(1 + \frac{\text{Per capita Income growth rate}}{100} \times \frac{\text{Internet Penetration}}{100}\right) \\ &\times \left(1 + \frac{\text{Population Growth rate}}{100} \times \frac{\text{Share of GDDP to GSDP}}{100}\right) \\ &\times \frac{\text{Share of manufacturing \& services to GDDP}}{100} \end{aligned}$

Based on type of e-goods one or a combination of composite indices as listed in table 2.3 are applied.

For example, for ITEW2, two indices are used considering these are used by both bulk consumers and retails consumers. Based on literature survey for goods used by both personal and organizational levels, a weighted average of 70% is considered for personal and industrial use and remaining 30% is assumed to be used in organizations. Table 2.4 lists the applicability of indices listed in Table 2.3, considering the assumptions listed in Table 2.1 and 2.2.

Table 2.4: Item-wise Applicability of Indices mentioned in Table 2.3

Based on the data collected from census and formulas indicated in Table 2.3 composite growth index parameters are calculated. Based on the applicability and relevance of individual index, weightage-factors were assigned to arrive at combined growth index. The indexes calculated are illustrated in Table 2.5.

Adjustment to the average life of e-goods as cited by CPCB is made by +/-20% to consider relative early disposal in metropolitan districts like Chennai and delayed disposal due to life extension by refurbishment in less developed districts. The correction factors for average life of e-waste is tabulated in table 2.6.

Table 2.6: Average E- Goods Age Correction/Modification (deviation from CPCB)

Positive Deviation	20%	0-20%
Negative Deviation	20%	0-40%

Composite index has been considered by several other studies and was found to be a reliable consistent methodology in those cases. To name a few,

- A multivariate discrete grey model for estimating the waste from mobile phones, televisions, and personal computers in India by Prasanna Venkatesan, Et al., NIT, Tiruchirapalli Journal. of Cleaner Production, 27 January 2021
- Development of Composite Performance Index for Solid Waste Management (IOSR-JESTFT) e-ISSN: 2319-2402,p- ISSN: 2319-2399. Volume 10, Issue 4 Ver. I (Apr. 2016)
- Composite water management index by NITI Aayog in August 2019

Concurrent to this, the composite indexes and deviation in life of e-goods is applied to base year from where data is available. For example Census is carried out in 2011 and data on majority of the metrics were available for that year and hence base year for many e-items was considered as 2011. The reported number of e-goods by TNPCB to CPCB is considered as baseline value of e-waste. Considering the formal collection of e-waste is <10% all over India reasonable assumptions were made to arrive at baseline correction factor. The baseline correction factor is applied to arrive at likely e-waste goods generated for e-goods sold in prior years. For example if e-goods (ITEW9 & CEEW-1) of Year 2011 are considered with a life of 6 & 9 years respectively, these implies the goods sold in 2011 which for accounting purposes is considered as 2012 (the goods sole in entire year of 2011 is considered sold at beginning of 2012) will become waste in 2018. For estimating goods consumed in other years and corresponding waste that can arise composite indices and other factors as described above are applied. The assessment examples accordingly are illustrated in Table 2.7 and 2.8.

2.2.3 Summary of E-Goods Consumption and Waste Generation

The product-wise projection of e-waste generation was estimated based on average life prescribed by CPCB. The same for entire state of Tamil Nadu is presented in Table 2.9 and 2.10. The total weight of E-waste for entire state of Tamil Nadu for year 2020 is estimated to be 4,00,482 MT and for year 2030 it is estimated to rise to 5,78,356 MT a 45% rise compared to 2020. Whereas the same in terms of no. of devices is estimated to be around 150 million and 240 million a 60% rise indicating increase in smaller weight components.

The year-wise projection and the trend in e-waste generation and their percentage contribution for the entire state is presented in Figure 2.1 and 2.2.

The above figure indicates the major contribution of e-waste by weight is from TV (including LCD, LED) which is around 71%.

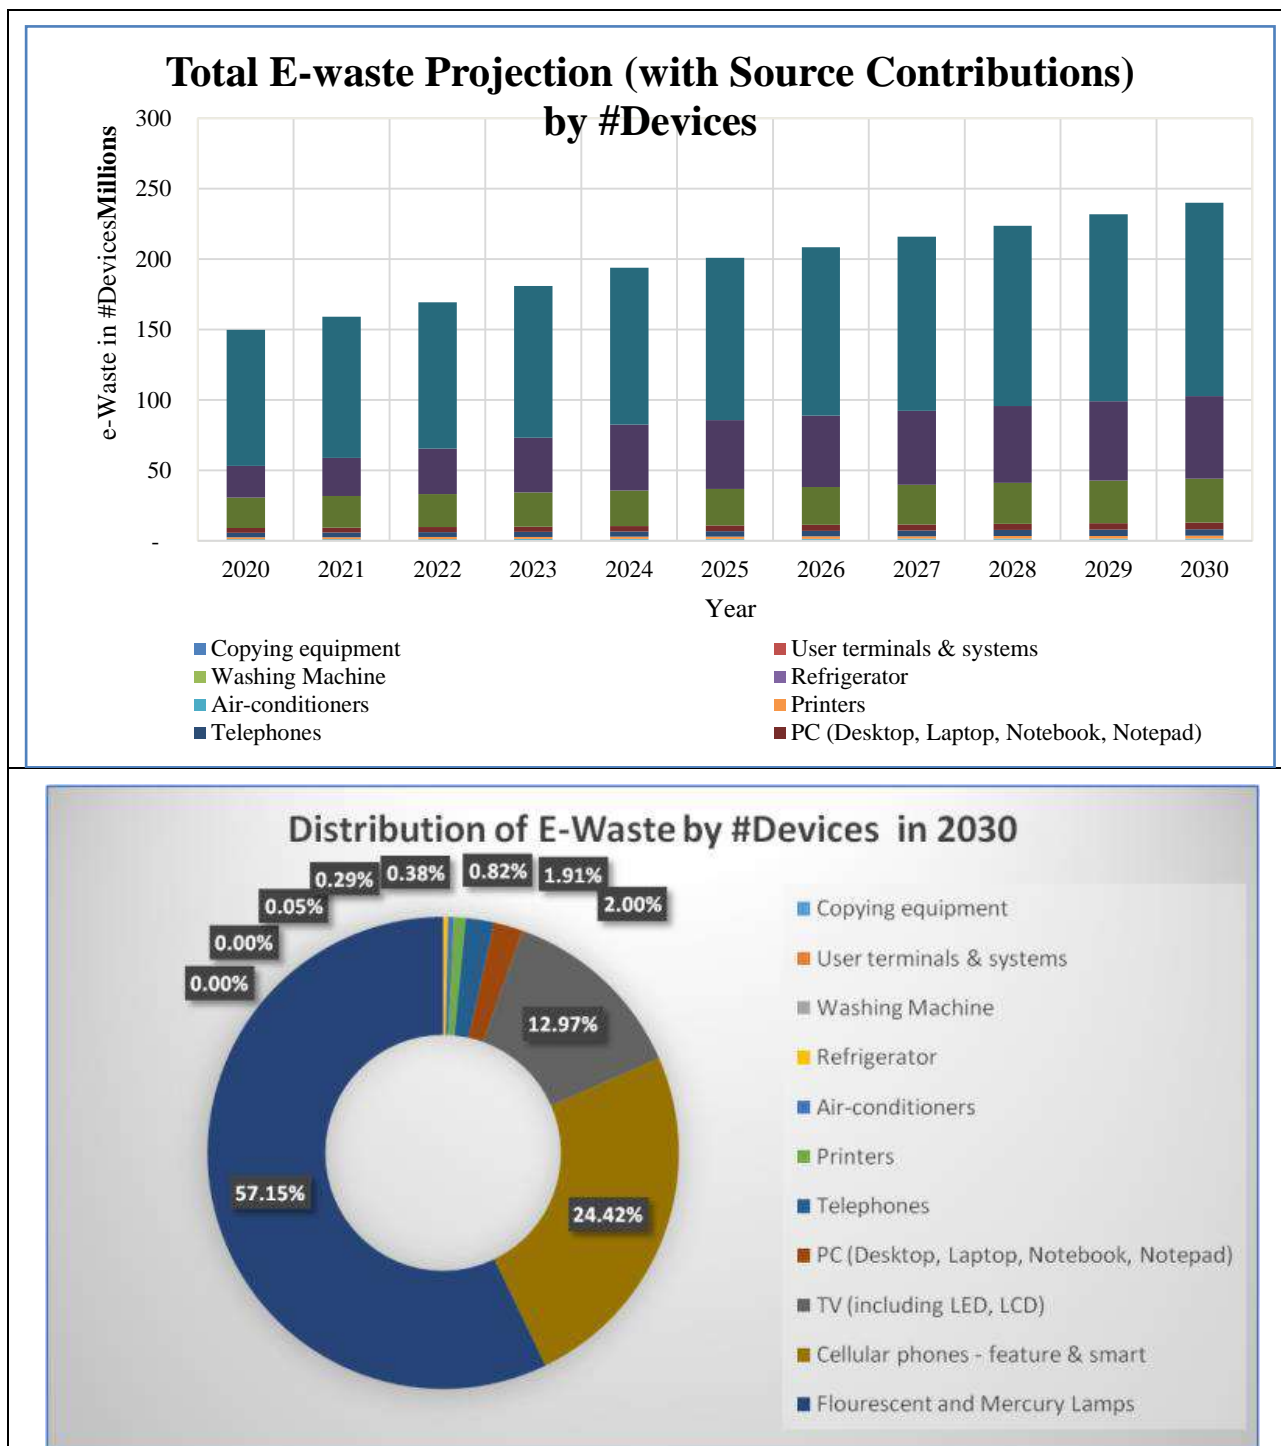

Figure 2.2: Present and Future E-waste Generation Trends no. of Devices

The above figure indicates that the major contributor of e-waste in terms of no. of devices is flouroscent and mercury lamps which are around 57%. The second major contributor is cellular phones which may be attributed to its low average life.

In addition to above calculations, two additional aspects are considered – one, when the average lifetime of the items exceeded by 20% (items are used longer than the CPCB listed average age), and two, when the average lifetime of the items is lower by 20% (items are discarded before the CPCB average age is attained). The projections based on these two assumptions are presented in Figure 2.3 and 2.4. It indicates that the total waste envisaged to be generated in year 2022 ranges from 4 Lakh MT/year to 4.62 Lakh MT/year and the same increases to 5.4 Lakh MT/year to 6.16 Lakh MT/year by year 2030. The total no. of waste devices envisaged to be generated are 161 million to 178 millions in year 2022 and the same increases to about 235 million to 245 million by year 2030.

Major e-waste generation from tier-II and tier-III cities are envisaged from TV, cellular phones and fluorescent & mercury lamps. The results of e-waste generation in terms of weight and numbers are given in table 2.8 & table 2.9.

Among all the districts Chennai is estimated to produce the highest amount e-waste of 31,746 MT in year 2020 and is projected to generate around 48,650 MT in year 2030 while the least quantity of e-waste is envisaged to be generated from Perambalur around 2485 MT and 3128 MT respectively.

The highest share of e-waste in terms of weight is envisaged to be generated from TV of around 4852 MT in 2020 and 7418 MT in 2030 in Chennai. The highest share of e-waste in terms of number of device is envisaged to be generated from fluorescent and mercury lamps of around 6.5 millions in year 2020 from Chennai and is envisaged to rise to 11.1 million in year 2030 in Kancheepuram. The projected e-waste quantity for fluorescent lamp is higher than that of Chennai as the composite growth rate of Kancheepuram is higher than that of Chennai.

The second highest share of e-waste in terms of numbers of devices is cellular phones. The rate of rise is envisaged to be high due to its low life. Chennai is estimated to generate around 1.7 million waste cellular phones in year 2020 and Kancheepuram is envisaged to generate the highest no. of cellular phone in 2030 which would be around 5.2 million.

2.3 Second stage inventorisation:

In the second stage inventorisation data is collected from recyclers about the e-waste/goods components and their weight to classify into materials like plastics, glass etc; that can be recycled. This inventorisation is done to enable improvisation in e-waste management based on the feedback provided by recyclers. During the discussions it is reported that all e-waste recyclers don't have provisions to completely dismantle and to recycle the dismantled components. For example an e-waste recycler may be focussed on extracting high value metals like gold and may not have provisions for recycling plastic, glass, other metals etc. There is no clarity on

- The secondary e-waste recyclers like plastic and metal recyclers are treated as e-waste recycler or plastic recycler or metal recycler.
- Whether these secondary recyclers like plastic are approved/licensed recyclers.

To address these issues and to enable exploration of low value high volume recycling at source this second stage inventorisation is conducted.

2.3.1 Data Sources

The e-Waste distribution based on the reported recovery of individual components such as plastics, PCBs, etc. of various products belonging to items listed in schedule 1 of the E-waste (Management) Rules, 2016 was collected from the recyclers. Considering the variations in size and weight of different e-goods/waste provided and as the number of varying sizes of same e-goods/waste a simple average is calculated for each of the e-goods/waste and compiled and is summarized in table 2.11.

The weight of e-Waste generated for each component (Component weight_{i,y}) is calculated as the sum-product of the weight of e-Waste generated for each item (Item Weight_{k,y}) listed in Table 2.12, multiplied by the percentage contribution of the e-Waste component to the item weight (Component contribution_i) from Table 2.12.

$$Component\ weight_{i,y} = \sum_k Item\ Weight_{k,y} \times Component\ fr.\ contribution_{i,k}$$

Where, i → Components listed in Table 2 k → Items listed in Table 3
 y → Year of calculation

For example, the amount of plastic generated in the year 2020 is calculated as-

$$Component\ weight_{Plastic,2020} = Item\ Weight_{ITEW2-5,2020} \times Component\ fr.\ contribution_{Plastic,ITEW2-5} + Item\ Weight_{ITEW6,2020} \times Component\ fr.\ contribution_{Plastic,ITEW6} + \dots + Item\ Weight_{CEEW5,2020} \times Component\ fr.\ contribution_{Plastic,CEEW5}$$

Ferrous metals and plastics constitute 81% followed by PCB’s constituting 7% waste by weight. The respondents to survey indicated all e-waste recyclers donot have facility to dismantle all e-waste products and to recycle all e-waste materials.

CHAPTER - 3

PROFILE OF STAKEHOLDERS

3.1 Stakeholders Profile and Preparation of Directory

As per E-waste (Management) Rules, 2016, the following are considered as key stakeholders

- Bulk Consumers
- Collection Centres
- Dealers
- Dismantlers
- E-retailers
- Manufacturers
- Producers/Assemblers
- Recyclers
- Refurbishers

This chapter describes the methodology followed to collect the list of stakeholders and preparation of directory for each type of stakeholders. The data was collected from different internet search engines and websites such as AICTE, schools.org.in, Electronics Industry Directory, National Health Portal, e-commerce websites, ICMR etc.

The stakeholder's directories are presented in detail in Annexure-6. Based on the directory, the district wise profile of different stakeholders & its correlations were analysed and presented as summary of the stakeholders in the table-3.1

From the above table, it is evident that out of 32 districts the majority of stakeholders were predominant in 10 major districts and their contribution with respect to entire state is 67% this can be seen pictorially from the graph below.

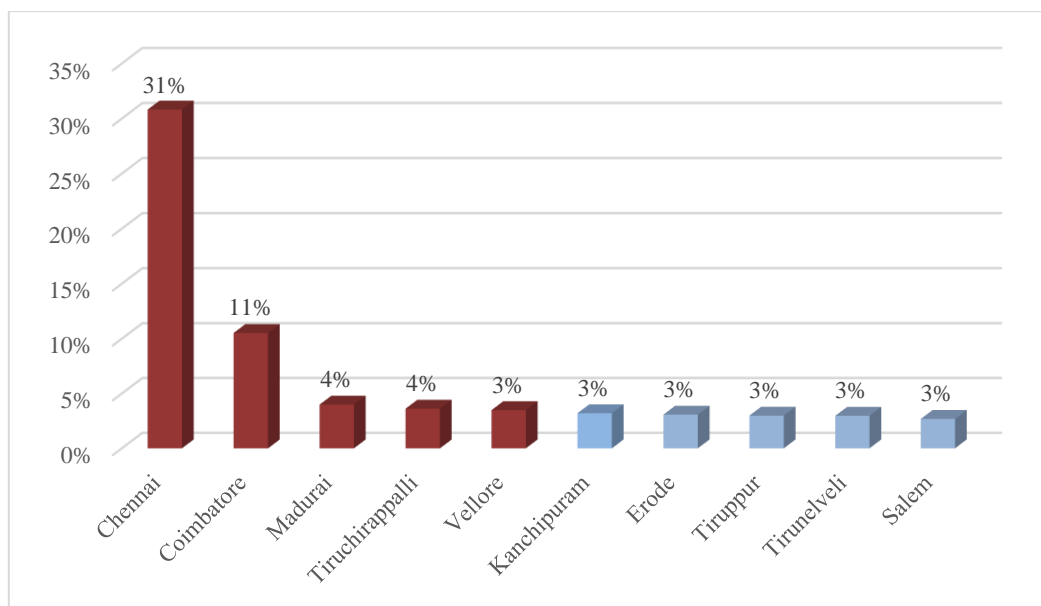

Figure 3.2: % of Stakeholders in first 10 Districts

Out of these 10 districts, the first 5 districts were considered as very critical and its contributions is 52%.

The remaining 33% of stakeholders are from rest 22 districts which is pictorially show below.

Based on the above analysis it can be concluded focussing on the 5 districts which are the major contributors of electronic waste generation will enable optimal managing e-waste at optimal cost in the beginning and also may help increase formal recycling percentage.

The products catered by the above listed stakeholders has been consolidated and given in the table-3.2 below. Since recyclers are goods independent they have not been listed in this table.

The data from Assembler, Dealer, Manufacturers, e-Retailers & Refurbishes is considered as e-goods supply-side data and Collection centres data is considered as e-waste disposal side. Also the data is analysed to arrive at ratio of collection centres with other predominant stakeholders(assemblers, dealers & refurbishers) to assess the need of collection centers vis-à-vis the number of supply side stakeholders for all the electronic equipments.

The ratio of collection centres with other predominant stakeholders is given in the below table 3.3.

Observation: A comparative graph between assemblers and refurbishers made in the graph above shows that in most of the districts except Chennai, less refurbishers exist when compared to assemblers. This could be an influence of difference in GDPs of each zone. Districts with lower GDPs may prefer refurbishing their goods rather than immediate disposal and purchasing from dealers/assemblers.

A comparison chart was prepared below between the bulk consumers, dealers, assemblers, refurbishers, collection centres and recyclers in all the 32 districts of Tamilnadu to assess which stakeholder has predominant influence on e-goods usage and disposal.

As can be seen from the above chart districts starting from Kanchipuram extending to other zonal districts, shows a sudden rise in number of dealers whereas a dip is seen in the bulk consumer’s number. This may be an indication of presence of more retailers when compared to bulk consumer’s presence. In these locations, since retailers are prone to be in a more dispersed fashion, more collection centres may be required

CHAPTER - 4

INVENTORY VALIDATION
THROUGH QUESTIONNAIRE
SURVEY OF STAKEHOLDERS

4.1 INTRODUCTION

In chapter 2 we have made projection of E waste based on various factor like income levels, income growth rates, population and its growth rate, goods and services availability, size of households, Gross District Domestic Product (GDDP), Gross State Domestic Product (GSDP), share of manufacturing and services and its % to GDDP, internet penetration and cellular phones growth etc. In order to validate the estimation of E waste the primary data were sought from various stakeholders through the structured questionnaire. If we consider the life cycle of the E-product to E – waste we can observe different stages starting from the entering of E-product into the market through manufacturer and producers via E-retailer and dealers to its disposal stage as E-Waste through refurbishers, recyclers via collection centre. The same is depicted in the picture form as given below for better understanding.

In each stages, depending upon the nature of stakeholder the availability of data with them also vary and in order to capture the data needed for the study, separate questionnaire were designed for each stakeholders and circulated through e-mail and post.

4.2 QUESTIONNAIRE DESIGN

Based on the understanding of the above E-Product life cycle the following major stakeholders were identified and questionnaire were designed separately for seeking data.

1. Manufacturers and Producers
2. Consumers and Bulk consumers
3. Recyclers and Refurbishers
4. Dealers and Collection Centres
5. E-Retailers

Separate questionnaire is prepared for each stakeholder based on the understanding of the data each stakeholder is likely to possess. The rationale behind the data sought from each stakeholder in their respective questionnaire is given in table below.

Table 4.1: Rationale behind Questionnaire design

S.No	Questionnaire for Stakeholders	Data sought	Rationale
1.	Manufacturers and Producers – Questionnaire is placed in Annexure – 3A	Product wise sales data for last 10 year Specification of products in terms of Number, Volume and Mass Characteristics of sub components in the product	To know the e-products entering into the market in previous years that would end up as e-waste in current year. To know the components and sub-components and their weight to assess the quantum of e-waste in weight terms. To know the characteristics of sub-components to assess what materials are recycled.
2.	Dealers – Questionnaire is placed in Annexure – 3B	Sales data and districts covered	To determine the e product enter into the market in district wise and to tally with the manufacturers details for the overall state.
3.	Bulk consumers – Questionnaire is placed in Annexure – 3C	Year wise E product procured and Disposed in terms of number and weight and the name of disposal agency	To determine the e waste generation rate and e product consuming pattern. For example IT/BPO companies may generate more e-waste compared to government administrative office.
4.	E-Retailers – Questionnaire is placed in Annexure – 3D	E-Product sold and districts catered	To capture e-waste from e retailer, who not have the physical presence in Tamilnadu

S.No	Questionnaire for Stakeholders	Data sought	Rationale
5.	Consumers – Questionnaire is placed in Annexure – 3E	Consumer name, age, education, city sought No of e-product (like Printer, Air conditioner, Refrigerator, laptop, Desktop, Mobile phone, Television, washing machine, replaced/exchanged in	To get the maturity level of consumers and to determine the consumption trends of rural and urban consumer
6.	Collection centres – Questionnaire is placed in Annexure – 3F	How much received in terms of number in Weight and address of the refurbishers to which the e-waste sent.	To determine how much e-waste is collected and to arrive at the formal collection percentage from the generated e-waste.
7.	Refurbishers and Recylers – Questionnaire is placed in Annexure – 3G	Scheduled E-waste received in terms of number and weight E-waste disposed to landfill or incinerated in terms of number and weight Component details composition	To calculate the weight of e waste which came for recycling and refurbishing? Also to calculate the percentage of e-waste recycled To calculate the percentage of non-recyclable in e-waste To identify the material present in each component of e waste like metallic wastes, plastics etc. It helps to find how much recyclable and other material are present in each component of e-waste and how much toxic material creates environmental damage.

The responses from various stakeholders collected through separate questionnaire is compiled and presented in the following section.

4.3 Dissemination of Questionnaires:

As detailed in previous sections questionnaires were designed & developed with respect to different stakeholder activities and profiles to meet the objectives of e-waste inventorisation. These questionnaires were sent to all stakeholders identified.

4.4 Distribution of questionnaires to various stakeholders

The questionnaire was sent to each of the identified stakeholder by e-mail and speed post besides indicating the web-link to download the questionnaires to be filled in. Individual letters addressing to all the district collectors were prepared and sent seeking their support to advice all government offices and departments under their jurisdictions to reply to the questionnaires.

Also a designated link in our website has been created (http://www.aipnpc.in/e_waste.aspx) to support this project and all the relevant questionnaires were uploaded on this website.

The following documents were sent/uploaded in the website for easy access by all the stakeholders

- (i) Questionnaires (Bulk consumer, Manufacturer, E-retailer, Collection centre, Dealer & Refurbishers /Recyclers)
- (ii) TNPCB's authorisation letter
- (iii) NPC's covering letter
- (iv) Contact details of concerned NPC officials

4.5 Stakeholders Meeting:

Stakeholder's meetings were carried out to explain all stakeholders the purpose and methodology to fill the questionnaires and address queries on providing data. Owing to COVID-19 pandemic situation, the meeting was conducted virtually through Webex online platform. Around 500 stakeholders were invited to participate in the online meeting to brief about the project and its needs.

4.5.1 Stakeholders Meeting for Manufacturers & Producers:

The first virtual meeting for Manufacturers & Producers was carried out on 28th July '2020 at 2:00 pm using Webex platform to explain the data needed for E-waste inventorisation and address their queries on questionnaire and to inform them about the timelines by which data needs to be submitted.

94 participants including TNPCB officials & stakeholders (manufacturers & producers) had attended the meeting. The meeting was chaired by Tmt Er. R. Sarasavani, Joint Chief Environmental Engineer of TNPCB and conducted along with NPC officials.

The meeting was addressed by both TNPCB and NPC officials.

4.5.2 Stakeholders Meeting for Dismantlers, Recyclers & Collection Centres:

The second virtual meeting was conducted on 06th August' 2020 , Thursday at 2:00 pm for Dismantlers, Recyclers & Collection Centres using Webex platform to explain the data needed for E-waste inventorisation.

121 participants including TNPCB officials & stakeholders (Dismantlers, Recyclers & Collection Centres) had attended the meeting and the meeting was chaired by Tmt Er. K. Nalini, District Environmental Engineer, Coimbatore of TNPCB.

The meeting was addressed by both TNPCB and NPC officials.

4.6 Follow-up activities:

- (i) All district Environmental Engineers were contacted through E-mails and sent the questionnaires along with stakeholders directory pertaining to their respective districts to circulate among the stakeholders of their respective region of control. (Directory for stakeholders is enclosed in Annexure-6)
- (ii) Followed by the stakeholders meeting all the attendees were sent questionnaires once again.
- (iii) All the stakeholders who were available on phone were contacted by NPC officials over mobile/landline to request them to submit the questionnaires on time.
- (iv) 5 reminder emails were sent to all the stakeholders listed under the database prepared by AIP-NPC including the attendees of stakeholders meeting.

4.7 Responses from stakeholders:

Post multiple reminders and series of follow-ups, 388 responses have been received till date. The following is the summary of the stakeholders who had responded and sent their responses by filling the appropriate questionnaires.

Table 4.2: Summary of responses

Stakeholders	Contacted from database	Response	Percentage of Response

Individual Consumers		296
Total Response		388
Overall Response in Percentage		5.35%

The responses received by each type of stakeholder is compiled as per item-wise scheduled e-waste and are given in Annexure-5.

4.8 INFERENCE ON DATA COMPILATION:

The stakeholder response has been only 5.35% of the overall stakeholders available in Tamil Nadu. In spite of contacting the stakeholders over phone and emails repeatedly, lean responses could be due to various reasons namely, the fear of disclosing the data, lack of manpower to compile the data/fill the questionnaire, improper record maintenance.

As stakeholder response is not encouraging to arrive at meaningful results alternate data and various factors were considered to estimate the e-goods coming into the market and based on CPCB average life span an estimate was made to assess e-waste generation. The factors considered are

- Gross National/State/District Domestic Product (GSDP)
- Share of manufacturing and services
- Internet penetration
- Cellular phones growth
- Household size & average number of household utilities

In addition to these, the district population profile was utilized to conceive the prediction of e-goods usage and e-waste generation. The data was taken from established sources like Tamilnadu District and State Census, ELCOT, RBI, MEITY, TRAI, CPCB, SPCBs, IBEF, .

The questionnaire response from the recyclers and dismantlers was compared with the data submitted by them to CPCB as presented in Table 4.3. It was observed that the former was less when compared to latter. The difference could be because of insufficient response from the recyclers and dismantlers. Secondly, the data submitted by these stakeholders would be pertaining to the e-waste recycled across India, whereas the questionnaire addresses data pertaining to Tamilnadu alone.

It can be observed from the above table that for every ton of waste recycled or refurbished, 0.238 Kgs to 0.833 Kgs of waste is being generated. The e-waste collected by recycler in a particulate year is stored for the entire year and processed only in the following year. The reason for the same was reported as lack of economical viable quantity of e-waste goods for processing. This could also be a possible reason for the difference in data reported to CPCB and data reported through the questionnaire regarding e-waste processed.

CHAPTER - 5

SUMMARY OF THE STUDY & RECOMMENDATIONS

5.1 Summary of the Study

- A two tier inventorisation is carried out. In the first stage inventorisation is based on E-goods sold and disposed at the end of the useful life. In the second stage inventorisation is done to assess the materials generated from E-waste like Plastics, Glass.etc; that can be recycled.
- E-goods consumption is estimated using census data e-goods held by households, population growth rate, Gross state and district domestic product, state per capita income, household size, internet penetration and making appropriate assumptions such as proliferation of mobile phone technology for estimating current ownership patterns.
- Similarly, e-waste generation was estimated using life of equipment information identified by literature survey, CPCB reports and data submitted by TNPCB to CPCB in Form V.
- Globally, only 20 per cent of e-waste is recycled each year, which means that 40 million tonnes of e-waste is either placed in landfill, burned or illegally traded and treated in a sub-standard way. As things stand today, the collection and processing of e-waste is still majorly informal. Depending on geography, the extent of e-waste collection and processing tends to vary, but even the best estimates do not exceed 10% collection by formal means.
- Considering that formal sector collects only 10% a base assumption is made that data submitted by TNPCB constitutes maximum 10% of e-waste and average of 5%.
- E-waste generation (weight or number) in $FY_{(x-y)} = \text{Sales in } FY_{(x-z)-(y-z)}$

where, x-y=financial year in which generation is estimated, and
z=average life span of EEE

- The availability of sales data in a geospatial format on a financial year basis is not publicly available currently, either at a national level or at the state level.
- Two other significant sources of data were relied upon to perform the estimation of e-waste in a district-wise manner in Tamil Nadu. One, the district census handbook of 2011 [3], and second, the Form-5 submissions made by the Tamil Nadu Pollution Control Board (TNPCB) [4, 5, 6] to the CPCB under the E-waste (Management) Rules, 2016.
- To calculate the growth in usage of e-goods factors like increase in population, number of households, industrial, mobile, internet penetration, growth in district economy vis-à-vis state, level of urbanization, factors influencing district's economy and other factors were considered [Ref Annexure 1 for all data]. The effect of these factors on e-goods consumption and waste are enumerated by considering the composite growth indices [Refer Table 2.3 and 2.4].
- The total weight of E-waste for entire state of Tamil Nadu for year 2020 is estimated to be 4,00,482 MT and for year 2030 it is estimated to rise to 5,78,356 MT a 45% rise compared to 2020. Whereas the same in terms of no. of devices is estimated to be around 150 million and 240 million a 60% rise indicating increase in smaller weight components.

- The major contributor of e-waste in terms of no. of devices is fluorescent and mercury lamps which are around 57%. The second major contributor is cellular phones which may be attributed to its low average life.
- In terms of components ferrous metallic components constitute the major portion followed by plastics. Ferrous metals and plastics constitute 81% followed by PCB's constituting 7% waste by weight.
- A total of 8717 stakeholders constituting manufacturers, sellers, bulk consumers, refurbishers, collection centers and recyclers were identified and directory for each type of stake holders prepared.
- Out of 32 districts the majority of stakeholders were predominant in 10 major districts and their contribution with respect to entire state is 67% this can be seen pictorially from the graph below.

- According to the electronic equipments the number of collection centers for each type of e-goods item and the total number of supply-side stake holders varies from 1:2 to 45 with highest collection centers for mobiles and desktops and lowest for printing equipment. On average there is one collection center for every 27 stakeholders.
- In order to validate the estimation of E waste the primary data were sought from various stakeholders through the structured questionnaire.

- 388 questionnaire responses have been received till date a 5.35% response. The following is the summary of the stakeholders who had responded and sent their responses by filling the appropriate questionnaires.

Table 5.1: Summary of responses

Stakeholders	Contacted from database	Response	Percentage of Response
Bulk consumer	3392	39	1.15%
Recylers and Refurbishers	903	6	0.66%
Dealers	3644	5	0.14%
Collection Centres	193	36	18.65%
Manufacturers / Producers	98	6	6.12%
Individual Consumers		296
Total Response		388
Overall Response in Percentage		5.35%

- For every ton of waste recycled or refurbished 0.238 Kgs to 0.833 Kgs of waste is being generated. The e-waste collected by recycler in a particulate year is not immediately processed in which it was reported is due to lack of economical number of e-waste goods. These are stored and processed in the following year. Due to this there is a difference in data reported to CPCB and data reported through questionnaire regarding e-waste processed.

5.2 RECOMMENDATIONS:

1. No district-wise distribution of manufacturer data is available from the previous years is available. As the same was not sought initially units reported not maintaining the data. Till such time this data is collected inventorisation of e-waste cannot be fully cross checked.
2. Dismantler/recyclers were provided the choice of submitting the data in terms of numbers or weight. Majority of them provided in terms of weight. It is recommended that data in terms of both numbers and weight is sought for correlation with manufacturers/ producers/ importers data.
3. Data of the components of e-waste/unprocessed the e-recycler passes on to another recycler is not available. For example if a e-recycler has no facility to recycle glass or wires, after dismantling data on how this part of e-waste is handled is not available. Also, a plastic waste recycler gets electronic plastic waste from e-recycler data on whether the plastic waste recycler is authorized or not needs to be maintained by e-recycler.
4. A mass balance study between each Form-2 submitted by each stakeholder would help in identifying the leaks of electronic waste into unauthorised stakeholders and strengthen the enforcement.

5. Five districts consumes almost 70% e-goods and waste and hence major focus needs to be maintained in improving e-waste management in these districts to enable better resource utilization.
6. It is recommended to deemphasize outdated products like main frames, electronic typewriters and bring new items like broadband modems into schedule of items. This necessitates constant updation of e-waste inventory data. Since the product and technology cycle life of electronic gadgets is between 3-5 years it is recommended to review the e-waste inventory every five years. This is crucial because, a sound inventory database would act as an effective tool for monitoring and compliance of E-waste Management Rules.
7. To ensure reliability of e-waste data, all stakeholders can be asked to provide data at determined frequency. To ensure getting right data:
 - a. It is recommended that Manufacturers be asked to provide data in Form –A and AA to obtain data on sales. As observed from the response to questionnaire till a mandate is created data submission may be lax. Considering this it is recommended that “Consent to sell” authorisation may be instituted. The recommended frequency of data submission is 1 year.
 - b. It is recommended that additional data inputs can be sought from decadal “Population Census” exercise. This will provide a good check on the reliability of e-waste inventorisation. The additional data requirement can be collected in the format given Form-C.
8. On a long term basis it is recommended that GST & associated TIN data may be synced to e-goods sales to arrive at district wise sales of e-goods if possible. This will help in avoiding data collection from manufacturers and will be in consonance with governments “ease of doing business” policy.
9. It is strongly recommended that all the new & existing stakeholders including Manufacturers, Producers, Collection centres, E-Retailers, Dealers, Refurbishers, Bulk Consumers, Dismantlers & Recyclers and their respective forms as specified in the Rules could be registered through <https://ocmms.tn.gov.in/OCMMS/> and E-Waste Authorizations can be obtained through OCMMS portal.
10. GST & associated TIN informations of all the stakeholders can be registered through the OCMMS portal and it can be assessed to identify the activities of stakeholders.

* Thiruppur District was created from erstwhile Coimbatore and Erode District, therefore while the census reported a negative population growth for Coimbatore and Erode, it was really population lost to Thiruppur on account of district carve-out. We assumed the growth rate of TN in general during the decade for Coimbatore, Erode, Thiruppur. Similarly for Krishnagiri district carved out of Dharmapuri.
